

We are going to use MTCNN because it performs both face detection and alignment, it's the widespread method and has plenty of implementations with proven results and active support.